Open the Conversation:

A person who designs buildings is called an Architect. In this lesson we will all become Architects because we will be designing a castle. You will have the choice to use realistic or abstract colors on your drawing. We will also be using a couple of techniques while coloring this work of art with crayons. Blending is when you take two colors on top of each other to create a new color. We will also be using plates to create texture on our paper as well.

Step One:

Students will create a drawing of a castle using pencil. Then, outline with permanent markers.
